Our initial vocational training experience

Viajes Macarena is a place where I have my internship. Because I don't know Spanish well I didn't have much work. Even that I could see how a typical day in the travel agency looks like and learn some reservation programmes.

Moises - my boss and Nuria - woman who also works there, are really kind people. Thanks to them the atmosphere in the agency was always good. I'm really happy that I have met them and could work in this place. It was really hard to leave them.

Conil de la Frontera

On Saturday we went to the beach called Conil. We were there 7 hours and almost all this time we spent sunbathing. The thing we liked the most was the ocean, the landscape was wonderful!

When we began to be hungry, we could go to see the city and taste some typical Spanish food. We also saw many handsome Spanish boys, so we will remember it forever.

Communication at work

At the beginning of our internship we were stressed, but every day we were doing it better and finally we can talk to our bosses without many complications.

Hotel La Vía Mezquita

Hotel La Boutique Casa Romana

Communication on the street

When we arrived , the language shock was huge. Listening everyone talking in a strange language was startling, but slowly we got accustomed to listen to it and to understand some single words.

Traditional Spanish Cuisine

Spanish cuisine is a way of preparing varied dishes, which is enriched by the culinary contributions of the various regions that makes up the country. It is a cuisine influenced by the people who throughout history have conquered the territory of that country.

Paella

It is a Valencian rice dish with ancient roots that originated in its modern form in the mid-19th century near the Albufera lagoon, a coastal lagoon in Valencia, on the east coast of Spain. The dish is widely regarded as Spain's national dish, as well as a regional Valencian dish. Valencians regard paella as one of their identifying symbols.

Gazpacho

It is a soup made of raw vegetables and served cold; Usually with a tomato base, originating in the southern Spanish region of Andalusia. Gazpacho is widely eaten in Spain and neighbouring Portugal. Particularly during the hot summers, as it is refreshing.

Jamón

It is the Spanish word for ham. In English it refers to certain types of dry-cured ham from Spain. There are two primary types of jamón: jamón serrano and jamón ibérico.

Jamón is similar to the Portuguese presunto and to the Italian prosciutto but is cured longer (for the maximum period of 18 months) and tastes slightly different.

Tortilla Española

The Tortilla Española, referred to in English as Tortilla, Spanish Omelette, is a typical Spanish dish consisting of an egg omelette made with added potatoes and fried in vegetable oil.

Tapas

Tapas are a wide variety of appetizers, or snacks, in Spanish cuisine. They may be cold (such as mixed olives and cheese) or hot (such as chopitos, which are battered, fried baby squid). In select bars in Spain, tapas have evolved into an entire, sophisticated cuisine. In Spain, patrons of tapas can order many different tapas and combine them to make a full meal. In some Central American countries, such snacks are known as bocas. In Mexico, similar dishes are called "botanas."
